Physical description of property and statement of historical significance:

This is a one and a half story Greek Revival house with a T-shaped floor plan. The building is clad with shiplap siding with capitals on the corner boards and vertical siding below the water table. The front porch, Italianate in character, has four turned posts with a balustrade and jigsaw cut decorations below the hip roof. The entry door has a single light and there is a one/one, double-hung window on each side. The shingle clad shed dormer centered above the porch is not original and contains three one/one, double-hung windows.

The one-story wing off the back has a porch on the right side of the south elevation. This porch has four turned posts, a balustrade and jigsaw cut decorations below its hip roof. There is a door with a single light and a pair of single light, double-hung windows on the right. The gable end on the left contains a single, double-hung window on the second floor and a pair on the ground floor. The north wall of the lower gable wing is covered by an addition with a shed roof and two square windows. On the northeast corner there is another small addition with a shed roof that connects the house to a rectangular hip roofed, free standing structure.
